Invitation

Sunday nights are back...for the time being. Now I know what some of you are thinking. You've probably gotten quite used to having your Sunday evenings off. One brother told me that for the first time in his life he had started golfing on Sunday afternoons. Then he confessed he was going to have a hard time going back to Sunday evening services whenever we started them back. Some of you may respond that this brother has compromised his standards or that he lacks commitment. Others of you, though, have no problem understanding where he's coming from.

Well, either way we are bringing back Sunday nights, but not out of any blind sense of duty or tradition. We bring them back with a purpose. We have a nursery available for our youngest children. For children pre-K thru 5th grade we're starting Nativity Play practice. It will begin tonight at 6pm in our Choir Room. My wife, Lauren, will be in charge. The Nativity Play will take place on Sunday night, Dec. 13th, at 6pm. For our teenagers (6th-12th gd.): Bro. Josh will be leading a service for our S2 Youth Group also beginning at 6pm tonight. They will be meeting in the Youth Room upstairs in our Family Life Center.

And for all of our adults: I'm excited to be leading a special Election Week Worship Service tonight at 6pm in the Sanctuary. I'll be preaching a message that speaks to several important issues we as Christians need to remember during the week of such an important political season. Please join me tonight as we will also have an altar call and a dedicated time of prayer for our nation and this week's election. See you tonight.

—Bro Deek
