A Student's Prayer for a New School Year

Lord Jesus, I ask for Your help as I begin this new school year.

Allow me to experience Your presence in the many blessings You put before me.

Open my eyes to the new challenges and exciting opportunities that this new school year brings.

Open my heart and mind to new friends and new teachers.

Give me a generous spirit to be enthusiastic with my studies and courage to accept new opportunities.

Help me to be attentive to my teachers and let me experience Your presence in my new friends.

Jesus, inspire me to do my best this year! Amen

A Teacher's Prayer for a New School Year

Father, please fill me with your understanding as I instruct others,

Help me to see the individual potential of every student I teach.

Father, please fill me with your patience as I teach others,

Help me to keep giving of my time and energy, especially to those who struggle the most.

Father, please give me your divine wisdom as I am with my class,

Show me when I must discipline and when I can show mercy.

Father, help me to depend totally on You, for You are the source of my strength, courage and peace.

Father, above all, may I love and care for each student I teach.

Show me how to serve as Christ serves

Give as Christ gives

Love as Christ loves. Amen

Call to Worship Scripture

Acts 6:7

Then the word of God spread, and the number of the disciples multiplied greatly in Jerusalem, and a great many of the priests were obedient to the faith.

Children's Ministry

Beulah offers a unified service that serves the whole family during the 10:45 Morning Worship service. Children, ages 3 years through 5th grade, will be dismissed during the "handshake meet and greet" to go to Praise Factory A.M., our term for a Sunday School class on their learning and age level. Praise Factory P.M. will reconvene in the fall.

A CINDERELLA STORY

by Max Lucado

My friend Kenny and his family had just returned from Disney World. "I saw a sight I'll never forget," he said. "I want you to know about it."

He and his family were inside Cinderella's castle. It was packed with kids and parents. Suddenly all the children rushed to one side.

Had it been a boat, the castle would have tipped over. Cinderella had entered.

Cinderella! The pristine princess. Kenny said she was perfectly typecast. A gorgeous young girl with each hair in place, flawless skin, and a beaming smile. She stood waist-deep in a garden of kids, each wanting to touch and be touched.

For some reason Kenny turned and looked toward the other side of the castle. It was now vacant except for a boy maybe seven or eight years old. His age was hard to determine because of the disfigurement of his body. Dwarfed in height, face deformed, he stood watching quietly and wistfully, holding the hand of an older brother.

Don't you know what he wanted? He wanted to be with the children. He longed to be in the middle of the kids reaching for Cinderella, calling her name. But can't you feel his fear, fear of yet another rejection? Fear of being taunted again, mocked again? Don't you wish Cinderella would go to him? Guess what? She did!

She noticed the little boy. She immediately began walking in his direction. Politely but firmly inching through the crowd of children, she finally broke free. She walked quickly across the floor, knelt at eye level with the stunned little boy, and placed a kiss on his face.

"I thought you would appreciate the story," Kenny told me. I did. It reminded me of the one you and I have been studying. The names are different, but isn't the story almost the same? Rather than a princess of Disney, we've been considering the Prince of Peace. Rather than a boy in a castle, we've looked at a thief on a cross. In both cases a gift was given. In both cases love was shared. In both cases the lovely one performed a gesture beyond words.

But Jesus did more than Cinderella. Oh, so much more.

Cinderella gave only a kiss. When she stood to leave, she took her beauty with her. The boy was still deformed. What if Cinderella had done what Jesus did? What if she'd assumed his state? What if she had somehow given him her beauty and taken on his disfigurement?

That's what Jesus did. "He took our suffering on him and felt our pain for us.. He was wounded for the wrong we did; he was crushed for the evil we did. The punishment, which made us well, was given to him, and we are healed because of his wounds" (Isa. 53:4-5).

Make no mistake — Jesus gave more than a kiss—he gave his beauty.

He paid more than a visit—he paid for our mistakes.

He took more than a minute—he took away our sin.

Include a Small Group in Your Walk with Christ

Hebrews 10:25 instructs believers not to forsake the assembling or ourselves together. In Acts 2 we see that the early church was devoted to the Apostles' teaching and to fellowship among other things. Besides being an active member of a strong local church, one of the best ways for believers to find significant spiritual fellowship is through a small group bible study — small groups of people meeting for Bible study and encouragement in their walk with Christ.

Being involved in a regular small group study can provide many benefits to someone looking to grow spiritually. For one, it will get you into God's word on a regular basis beyond what you get from church and over time can help a person become someone who knows God's Word well.

Secondly, being in a regular small group study will allow one to be around other believers who are moving in the same direction. You can learn from each other, motivate each other and support each other through difficult times. Having a group of people around you that are all striving for the same goal makes it much easier to keep yourself moving forward towards your goal, rather than trying to go it alone.

Another benefit from being in a regular small group study is the spiritual growth that will occur. This in turn equips a person to be a better spiritual leader at home, at work, church and community. People grow into significant spiritual influencers of others in part through the process of being in a small group over time. It is certainly a great way to help make sure you are leading your family in the right direction.

We have all seen athletes give credit to their teammates and coaches for helping them achieve success. These are not usually empty words. The dynamic of being on a motivated team helps everyone get better. This same principle is true for our spiritual lives as well. We need to be a part of a motivated team that will help us get better. The small group that you meet with for Bible study can be that team. If you are currently involved in a small group, commit to it and help make it better. If you are not, find one that works for you and you will reap spiritual benefits that will bless your life in ways you can't be otherwise.
