Prayer Support

- Pray for a renewed energy, as we are 4 weeks away from finishing and some have experienced a degree of burnout already.
- Pray for the missionary couple in Siwa, Sammy and Deborah, as they are the only Christians in this city.
- Pray for the shop owner Yousry and his son Yousef. That our conversations planted seeds.
- Pray for me in Mexico, just for a renewed energy and that I take advantage of every opportunity that presents itself here.

Praise

- Praise God for the time I had in Siwa, it was great connecting with the missionary couple and encouraging them.
- Praise God for all of you who have backed me through prayer and financial support.
- Praise God for smooth and safe travels from Egypt to Mexico.

Hello friends & family,

In the last letter I shared a story about how we saw God move in Cairo, we were in Siwa for two weeks and here is an update on what we did there.

Most of our time was spent helping and encouraging the missionary couple out there, as they are the only christians in the community. Helping them with chores around the house, some landscaping projects, prayer and worship sessions, and just spending time in community with them, going for lunch and supper some days. It was an eye opening experience seeing a couple do their best to be obedient and live out the gospel in a muslim community with no other christians. I can imagine how alone it could feel not having other believers around, so it was awesome being able to serve and encourage them.

We went back to Cairo, and I was able to befriend one of the local shop owners and have great conversation with him. He was interested to know what Christians believe so I was able to have some conversation with him. It was hard to communicate because he spoke little english and I do not speak arabic but I was able to also give him a usb device with the bible downloaded on it in arabic. Through the conversation we did have however I feel confident that seeds were planted and that if my whole purpose of going to Egypt was just to reach this one man then it was worth it and I would do it all again.

Due to Covid restrictions I have been relocated to Mazatlan, Mexico January 22. I got sick during my travels, so I have been staying on base here trying to get healthy. The new team is great and I am excited to see what God is gonna do here. I am excited to share future updates from Mexico.

God Bless!
