I read an interesting thought on social media recently. The essence of it was that God wants us to be “good” as opposed to “nice.” It went on to define the differences in these two concepts and, for the most part, I would agree with the proposed theology.

However, I personally believe God wants something even greater than good or nice. I believe God wants us to be holy. Peter wrote about this idea in 1 Peter 1:16. While looking back at the OT scriptures referencing God, he admonished his audience to, “Be holy, because I am holy.”

Here is the key difference. The concept of good is both fluid and difficult to define in our society. In its truest form, the concept should relate back to God. However, it rarely does, and we don’t often understand it that way.

Holiness defines the very nature of God. We cannot possibly define holiness without discussing God. Holiness relates to the character of God and our relation to that God. In other words, holiness often goes way beyond our common understanding of goodness.

Scripture to Ponder for The Week

“Pursue peace with everyone, and holiness – without it no one will see the Lord.”
(Hebrews 12:14)
