Five Probing Questions about Faith

By Jason Jackson | Christian Courier

James 2 : 14 - 16 (ASV)

…"What does it profit?" "Profit" (Greek ophelos) communicates here the idea of "an advantage derived from something … what good does it do? Js 2:16". What spiritual benefit is to be found in mere faith talk? Or we could ask: "What benefit follows from 'accepting Jesus' while rejecting what he requires?" None! The Savior himself asked: "And why call ye me, Lord, Lord, and do not the things which I say?" (Lk. 6:46).

You meant It For Evil But God Meant It For Good

MESSAGE

Through Joseph's life we can see how God use's man's evil for good. Our God allows what he hates to accomplish what he loves. Sometimes it's difficult to say, "God I don't understand what's happening right now but I trust you".

"God if you're a good God why do you allow these evil things to happen?" The intellectual answer is easy. He allows us to have free-will along with it's consequences. We wouldn't have free will if God intervened. God allows evil to coexist with good until He decided to end it all. God doesn't desire for any man to perish. Even in prison Joseph prospered. There are times when we won't get closure/ answers. Will you still trust God? We may pass on before we get the answers we seek, but others may see the effects and benefit from our experiences.
