

Collin Cornell joined the Fuller faculty in 2023 as assistant professor of Bible and mission. Dually appointed to the Bible department and the mission department, he teaches classes at Fuller's Texas campus in Old Testament and missiology, particularly biblical theology of mission. His research interests center on the history of religions and biblical theology, and he publishes on a range of related topics including: Psalms, Tabernacle texts, Levantine religious traditions, post-supersessionist hermeneutics, and ecological interpretation.

Prior to Fuller, Dr. Cornell taught as visiting faculty at the University of the South (Sewanee), Duke Divinity School, and Candler School of Theology at Emory University. He also managed Sewanee's Center for Religion and Environment, coordinated Sewanee's Indigenous Engagement Initiative, and acted as academic dean of the Stevenson School for Ministry, a local formation school of the Episcopal church. Cornell recently authored a new book: God Draws Near: Rethinking the Biblical Theology of Mission (2025)

WORKSHOP # 1 PRACTICES FOR A RESTORED DIACONATE

Presenter: Rupert's Land Deacon's Network

Description - This summer, General Synod passed new resolutions recommending the compendium Practices for a Restored Diaconate. As part of our commitment to engage this resource, the Rupert's Land Deacon's Network will be presenting highlights from the document and guiding us into a robust conversation about the role of diakonia for the Church today!

WORKSHOP # 2 CRAFTING CHIASMS

Presenter: Sam Bird

Description - This workshop will feature local poet, Sam Bird, and is focused on using chiastic structures as a form for writing poetry. Sam has a background as an educator and activist, particularly around Indigenous language and youth issues. Sam is a member of Peguis First Nation.

WORKSHOP # 3 GROWING TOGETHER IN FAITH

Presenter: The Ven. Lee Domenick

Description — To grow a church, start by embracing the power of good old-fashioned hospitality moment where everyone can talk, share faith, and maybe even recruit some new members. If you are short on clergy, tap your most enthusiastic parishioner to lead services. Encourage everyone to dust off their hymnals, and also introduce a little "tech-savvy" worship (if possible), such as using streaming services, so those who cannot make it can still feel like they are participating. And, of course, make sure your church is known for its "legendary" potlucks—because nothing says "new member" like a plate of homemade casseroles and a warm handshake.

Come find out more about how to grow the church in ways many have not thought of. It does not take money. It does take time and perhaps thinking outside the box!

WORKSHOP # 4
POETRY & THE RITUALS OF FOOD

Presenter: Joanne Epp

Description - Food is full of meaning, especially when it's shared. In this workshop we'll explore some of that significance, as it's expressed in shared rituals of eating, by reading and reflecting on selected poems and writing some of our own.

WORKSHOP # 5 I BIND UNTO MYSELF TODAY

Presenter: Kirsten Pinto-Gfroerer

Description -This workshop will explore a variety of ways of approach to the life of prayer, acknowledging that each soul needs particular nurture. We will consider how our personhood comes into play in our spiritual disciplines while at the same time emphasizing that the Trinitarian God is always the actor, the aim and the place of our inner life.

Facilitator: Ryan Turnbull

Description - Open Space is a space where you bring the agenda. Perhaps you have conversations about the church you've been waiting to have. Perhaps you find yourself chatting with a new friend and don't want to break that off. Come join us in the Open Space room to keep the conversations going.
