Weaver's Writings:

The Church: God's Instrument for His Purposes

When we think about how God works in the world today, we might consider things such as personal evangelism, community involvement, or acts of individual kindness. While God can certainly work through many avenues, His Word reveals that the church holds a unique and primary place in accomplishing His purposes on earth.

The church is not an afterthought or backup plan. Paul writes that God's wisdom is "now made known to the rulers and authorities in the heavenly places through the church" (Ephesians 3:10). This reveals something profound; the church itself is a demonstration of God's eternal wisdom. From the beginning, God has always worked through His people to accomplish His will. In the Old Testament, He used Israel as a light to the nations. Today, He uses the church, the body of Christ, to make His wisdom and grace known to the world. The church is not a human invention or a social club; it is God's instrument for carrying out His eternal purpose.

The church displays God's wisdom in a way nothing else can. In Christ, people from every background are united by faith, reconciled to God and to one another (Ephesians 2:14-16). When the world sees a loving, forgiving, united church, it sees a glimpse of what God intends for all creation. Consider a symphony for example. Each instrument alone might sound ordinary, but together they produce a beautiful harmony. The church is like that, different people, one purpose, directed by the same Master.

The church also proclaims God's grace. His grace is not meant to be hidden. The church is the messenger of the good news; salvation is found in Jesus Christ. When we share the gospel, serve others, and live holy lives, we proclaim God's grace to the world.

The church is not just a building or a Sunday gathering. It is a living body with a mission (Matthew 28:18-20). God's eternal purpose is to redeem people through Christ and bring them into His family. This purpose continues today through the work of His church. When we stay devoted to Christ's teaching, to fellowship, to breaking bread, and to prayer (Acts 2:42), we are part of something far bigger than ourselves. We are part of God's plan to reach the world.

God has chosen us, His church, to be the hands, feet, and voice of Christ in our communities. The church is not just important; it is essential to God's eternal purpose. Let's commit ourselves fully to His mission, so that through us, the manifold wisdom of God may continue to be made known.
