Jesus, the Model of Compassion

When we look at the life of Jesus, one theme shines through every page of the Gospels, His compassion. Over and over again, Jesus noticed people others ignored, moved toward people others avoided, and touched lives others had written off. Compassion was not simply something Jesus felt, it was something He lived.

Scripture often begins His miracles with these simple words: "He had compassion..." (Matthew 9:36; 14:14; 15:32). That compassion was not weakness or sentimentality. It was the deep, active love of God expressed in real, tangible ways. Jesus cared because the heart of God cares.

He showed compassion to the physically broken, the blind, the lame, the sick, and the outcast. He showed compassion to the spiritually lost such as tax collectors, sinners, and those trapped in shame. Even in His final hours, Jesus spoke compassion to the thief on the cross and to the very people crucifying Him: "Father, forgive them..."

For His followers today, compassion is not optional. It is the natural result of walking in His footsteps. The church is called to reflect His heart in a world that desperately needs mercy, gentleness, and understanding. Paul reminds us, "Be kind to one another, tenderhearted..." (Ephesians 4:32). When we show compassion, we proclaim the character of Christ.

Compassion begins with seeing people the way Jesus saw them: not as interruptions, burdens, or problems, but as souls loved by God. It grows as we listen, pray, enter into others' struggles, and offer the help we can. It is strengthened every time we choose patience over frustration, mercy over judgment, and service over self-interest.

May our words be softer, our hearts more open, and our hands more ready to serve. May people see Jesus in us, not only in what we say, but in how we love.
