

Update on house

Dear Praying Friends,

Thank you all for praying for the sale of our house. I was especially burdened to ask the Lord to allow our house to sell this week. I got a call from the real estate agent this evening, and she told me that the family that looked at the house last Thursday made an offer around 10% lower than the asking price. We decided to accept this offer, since it has been rare to find a family in the market with multiple children who are looking for a larger home. They pay cash as well, which is an added blessing. They could easily find a family home with a garden for the price of our two-story apartment, so it is a blessing finally to find a buyer who is seriously interested. The agent will contact the buyer tomorrow morning to finalize the sale. I suppose it could still fall through, but it seems like this is actually happening.

Thank you for your prayers!

Mike for the Fruehs
