Message from Pastor

I have spent a lifetime trying to become something I thought the world or God would like. Trying to fix the brokenness of my life and surroundings in order to achieve some sort of “ideal” life or at least one without struggle. I’ve emptied out self help shelves in order to become a better me, and I’ve studied with masters on how to become a good leader. I’ve worked with professionals on my mental health, coaches on how to live better, and Spiritual Directors on how to better follow God, but somehow things still don’t seem to be complete, and there’s always something more that challenges my feelings about myself, my community, and God. I just feel like I have to “do” more.

A couple years back there was a cartoon in the paper that had 2 people yelling at each other. One held a sign that said “Do”, like the world and success depends on simply doing more stuff. On the other side of the page was another person holding up the sign “Be”, representing right thought, right belief, even right principles for living. The two sides kept yelling back and forth “Do and “Be”. Do and Be over and over again until the two sides who started as claiming the only right path moved from screaming to something more. The last frame of the comic had the two sides with arms around each other singing a new song “Do-Be, Do-Be, Do”, a melody that is truly for all.

Our life of faith needs a similar balance. There are times when we need to step up and live out the love we have been given through God’s grace. To support the food shelf, to help the neighbor, and physically take care of those who are vulnerable, to “Do” the work of God. Yet there are times where we are invited to “Be” and seek to understand and hear God’s words of love, hope, forgiveness, and purpose. Most of us tend to be more focused on one over the other, but both are important if we are to do this living thing well. God invites us to see life not as either/or, but both/and.

As I look at the story of Jesus in the Gospel of Matthew, I noticed that Jesus even engages this balance. Before any major event in his ministry he goes off with those closest to him or alone to pray and listen to God. Then he goes and does something. Whether that’s physically healing those that are broken, teaching a different way to live, sacrificing himself for the sake of all people, or returning from death itself in the resurrection Jesus showed us a pretty good way to live that combines these two actions into the song that is our lives.

As we start the new year, I invite you to join us as we focus on the song that God gives us. Come and “Do-Be, Do-Be, Do” your own part in this song that changes the world.

Peace,
Pastor Brent

Prayer of Epiphany

O God,
who am I now?
Once I was secure
in familiar territory
in my sense of belonging Unquestioning of the norms of my culture
the assumptions built into my language
the values shared by my society.

But now you have called me out and away from home and I do not know where you are leading.
I am empty, unsure, uncomfortable.
I have only a beckoning star to follow.
– Kate Compston

Time Together with Poet & Theologian Pádraig Ó Tuama
Sunday, January 18 @ 3 p.m. | Gloria Dei, St. Paul

Equipping Storytellers:

Saturday, January 31 - 9am-2pm | Gustavus Adolphus, St. Paul

Stories shape faith, build connection, and help the gospel come alive. Join pastor, speaker, comedian, and award-winning storyteller Nathan Mugaas for a playful and practical day designed to help leaders discover, shape, and share meaningful stories in worship.

Through live examples, simple frameworks, and hands-on practice, participants will learn how to craft compelling stories, tell them with confidence, and explore how storytelling can be woven into congregational life—especially in the Lenten season.

The cost is $25 and includes lunch.

Register on the Saint Paul Area Synod website or contact Pastor Brent.

Contact Pastor Brent if you are interested or join him on Jan 31st for the “Equipping Storytellers” event through the synod.
