Humble Me

By Michael Orr

Humble me, for I am proud,
Cast life and light through graying cloud.
For dark and dreadful crowds the aisle,
To block this path of self denial.

Humble me, for selfish need,
Grows hungrier the more I feed.
Enrages ego in the growing,
Always seeking, never knowing.

Humble me, for I grow leery,
Prayers unanswered, hope turned weary.
Nothing gained from man’s approval,
Desperate for this self-removal.

Humble me, wash hands and heart,
Let wicked thoughts and dreams depart.
So I may stand, no longer stumble,
Break my will and make me humble.
