

Plenty Good Room

A Pentecost Reflection

Questions for Reflection:

How are your gifts wind, fuel, and language for abundance in the world?

inclusive invitation to find Love when we are gathered together. He lives, works, and worships in San Francisco, California.

Pentecost is the day when the Spirit rushes in like wind and fire, breaking down barriers and filling the Church with new life. People from every nation, speaking many languages, suddenly hear the Good News proclaimed as if in their own tongue. The miracle is not just the flame on each head, but the widening of God's circle of love. The Spirit ensures that no one is left out – there is plenty good room.

The story of Pentecost overturns every instinct toward scarcity and exclusion. Where some would limit access to God's presence, the Spirit pours out on all flesh. Where some would cling to privilege or power, the Spirit equips the young and the old, women and men, servants and leaders alike. Where some would fear difference, the Spirit transforms diversity into the very sign of God's abundance.

The Church is born in this moment – formed not by walls, but by wind; not by scarcity, but by overflowing abundance. This is the Church we are called to be: a community that welcomes all, equips all, and sends all to be stewards of the Kingdom. Pentecost reminds us that every gift is needed, every offering has value, every voice matters.

In this season, we are challenged to let the Spirit move through our own giving. Stewardship is not just about sustaining budgets; it is about igniting mission. Our pledges and offerings are not obligations – they are fuel for the Spirit's fire, resources that help the Church proclaim God's abundance in every language and every place.

On Pentecost, the disciples discovered that there is no limit to God's generosity. The same is true for us. When we trust the Spirit and share freely, God multiplies our gifts and sends us out as witnesses to love. There is indeed plenty good room – for every culture, every language, every person – in the household of God.
