Do Not Despair

By Michael Orr

The letters are faded,
But the sign is still there,
For the road-weary pilgrim,
Do not despair.

Though your footfalls grow heavy,
And your head is bowed low,
Every wind pressed against you,
In the places you go,

You are geared for the journey,
When your posture is straight,
Placing every step forward,
Laying down every weight.

Cutting off your excuses,
Building up honest talk,
Let your purpose be lifted,
By the way that you walk.

For the road is unsteady,
When your steadiness fails,
But this faith in your journey,
Is the path that prevails.

As a lamp, shine intention,
Through the best and the worst,
Let your smile hold water,
For the moments you thirst.

Taking pause for reflection,
In your travels take care,
Better paths are before you,
So do not despair.
