Little Did You Know

By Michael Orr

Those random acts of kindness,
You did in smallest fashion,
Were never ever random,
But born of true compassion.

And little did you know,
That angels saw your hand,
Though no one else may ever see,
The good things you have planned.

The places where you lingered,
Where hands were held in tears,
In sickness and in sorrow,
You walked them through their fears.

And little did you know,
The part that you would play,
Where heavy hearts were lifted up,
When you said that you would stay.

You gave to those who needed,
You clothed and fed the weak,
Your heart was moved in service,
Your lips were moved to speak.

And little did you know,
You changed the world a bit,
For every tiny light you shine,
Keeps burning when it's lit.

You good and faithful servant,
Don't let your goodness wane,
For all the good you're doing,
Is never done in vain.

For little did you know,
The Father and the Son,
Remembers every good and faithful,
Work that you have done.
