Pine Ridge Internship

Garrison Leuf

CHANGE, CHALLENGE, AND GROWTH: THE FIRST FEW WEEKS

My first few weeks up here at Pine Ridge have been a real blessing to me. When I first got here, I felt like a fish out of water, which wasn't helped by the fact that I had to help lead a youth group the night after I arrived. I already struggle to adapt to new circumstances quickly, and this just showed how much I needed to learn. Because of this, I worked hard to adapt, and over the course of the next week, I learned a lot about how I fit into this new context.

One of the things I've had to do a lot more than before is construction/carpentry work. Starting my second week, I've been mostly working on either building or helping build, repair, and install various projects around camp. While this may not be my strong suit, I am doing my very best to be useful in this role.

Another thing I've been working on is designing promotional material for the camp, such as videos and posters. This is a role I have a lot more experience with, and I have been enjoying putting these skills to good use.
