Ordinary Gifts, Extraordinary Results

One of the greatest misconceptions is the idea that God only uses exceptionally talented people to accomplish His purposes. We read of Moses parting the Red Sea, of David slaying Goliath, of Peter preaching to thousands on the Day of Pentecost, and we quietly conclude that such things are simply beyond us. We are, after all, just ordinary people. What could God possibly do with what little we have to offer? The answer, it turns out, is everything.

When Moses stood before the burning bush, overwhelmed by the weight of his calling and acutely aware of his own inadequacy, God asked, "What is that in your hand?" (Exodus 4:2). Moses answered simply, "A staff." A shepherd's staff. A tool of his trade. Something so common and unremarkable that he likely never thought twice about it. But God told him to throw it down. That ordinary rod became the instrument through which God would display His power before Pharaoh, part the waters of the Red Sea, and bring water from a rock in the desert.

The question God asked Moses is the same question He asks each of us, what is that in your hand? What has God already given you? What are the ordinary gifts, the quiet abilities, the everyday resources that you may have overlooked or undervalued because they seem too simple, too common, or too small to matter?

For some, it is the gift of hospitality. For others, the gift of encouragement or of service. Scripture never once commands us to be gifted. It commands us to be faithful. God never asked for impressive. He asked for faithful. He asked for available. He asked for a willingness to place whatever you have in His hands and trust Him with the results.

The same Jesus who took five loaves and two fish and fed a multitude is at work today in His church. He is still looking for willing hands, open hearts, and ordinary gifts surrendered to His extraordinary purposes. So give what you have. Give it faithfully. Give it joyfully. And watch what God does with ordinary gifts.

"Whatever you do, work heartily, as for the Lord and not for men, knowing that from the Lord you will receive the inheritance as your reward. You are serving the Lord Christ." (Colossians 3:23-24)
