Over a Million Meals sent for Earthquake Relief

"Do to others as you would have them do to you." Luke 6:31

Our hearts break when we hear of devastating earthquakes and see images of distraught families sleeping outdoors in makeshift shelters after having lost their home and possessions. We can't imagine what that would be like if it were our own family. But we're grateful that when our hearts are breaking, we have something we can do to make a difference. Recently, when an earthquake hit in South America, FV Gleaners rushed into action and contacted one of our distribution partners to find out if our food aid could help. "Oh yes, yes, there is so much need. Thank you!" was the reply. We're grateful for the volunteers who were eager to come out for extra shifts, packaging our dried product into bags and boxes for shipping. This is why FV Gleaners exists — to provide humanitarian aid, and in doing so, to love others as we would want to be loved.

FVG Food Aid Easing Burdens for the Poor

No parent should have to choose one necessity over another for their family, yet that is a decision many around the world have to face every day. These are parents doing everything they can, yet still unable to provide life's basic necessities.

Chernet, with a big smile, sits on the bed he shares with his mom.

Chernet, an eight-year-old boy in Ethiopia, lives with his mother in a small rented house after his father left the family. With her limited income, Chernet's mother must cover rent, water, electricity, school expenses, transportation, clothes, and shoes — leaving little for food. Even cooking comes at a cost: though their home has electricity, she can't afford to use appliances, so she buys charcoal instead. Most days, she and Chernet survive on simple meals that often lack nutrition. Through FVG's nutritious food aid, distributed by local partners on the ground, the burden on Chernet and his mother is eased for a while.
