Love, Serve, Walk

By Michael Orr

May I never be an actor,
Where faith is none but talk,
But live as a disciple,
To love and serve and walk.

As actors play for others,
To beg for their applause,
And show up to be noticed,
Without a noble cause.

But every true disciple,
Shows love in vivid color,
To walk by faith and Spirit,
In serving one another.

The actor for their pleasure,
Will hide their true intent.
But every good disciple,
Will go where they are sent.

Where one will seek a bargain,
The other takes their cross.
Where one craves wealth and status,
The other counts their loss.

O Lord, cast off my costume,
And may it never be.
That I would shun your teaching,
Or live instead for me.

So teach me, Lord, to listen,
And fill the board with chalk,
Reminding Your disciple,
To love and serve and walk.
