JOHN 6:30-40

- The crowd pointed to the manna in the wilderness as the ultimate sign of God's provision. Where in your life are you still looking for "signs" or past provisions instead of recognizing the greater gift God is offering now?
- Manna was temporary—it sustained for a day and then spoiled. What temporary "breads" (achievements, comforts, relationships, security) are you tempted to treat as ultimate?
- How does remembering Israel's history of grumbling after receiving manna challenge the way you respond when God's current provision feels insufficient?
- Jesus does not merely give bread; He is the Bread. What difference does that distinction make in how you relate to Him day by day?
- When Jesus says, "I am the bread of life," He invites people to come and believe. In practical terms, what does "coming to Jesus" and "believing in Him" look like in your ordinary routines this week?
- The crowd wanted more miracles; Jesus offered Himself. Where might you be asking God for secondary gifts while neglecting the primary gift of Christ Himself?
- Jesus promises that whoever comes to Him will never hunger and whoever believes will never thirst, and that He will raise them up on the last day. How does this future hope reshape the way you face present hungers, losses, or uncertainties?
- Eternal life is described both as a present possession ("has eternal life") and a future reality ("I will raise him up"). Which aspect feels more real or needed in your life right now, and why?
- Jesus says it is the Father's will that He lose none of those given to Him. How does this assurance of security in Christ free you from performance-based spirituality or fear of falling away?
- After hearing that Jesus is the true Bread from heaven, what is one concrete way you can "feed" on Him this week (Scripture, prayer, obedience, community, gratitude)?
- Is there any area of your life where you are still trying to live on manna instead of the Bread of Life? What would it look like to turn fully to Jesus there?
