Acts 9:20-31

Read Acts 9:20-31 as a group. What stands out to you in this passage? What do you notice about the context and those in the story? What do you see about God through this passage?

What changes do you notice in Saul from what we have previously seen of him? What do his words, actions, and priorities reveal about what encountering Jesus has done in his life?

What do you notice about the risks Saul and the other believers are willing to take in this passage? What do their choices reveal about what matters most to them?

Saul's encounter with Jesus didn't just change what he believed. It changed what he lived for. If you looked at the ordinary rhythms of your own life, where can you see that following Jesus has changed what you live for? Where is that harder to see?

Who has God already placed around you in your everyday life? What might good news look or sound like for them, and what could help you understand and love them well enough to share it?

What tends to hold you back from talking about Jesus or living more intentionally on mission? Fear, uncertainty about what to say, busyness, comfort, concern about relationships, or something else? What would it look like for mission to be part of your ordinary life rather than something you leave to people who seem especially gifted at it?

If Jesus is Lord over every part of our lives, is there an area you sense Him inviting you to surrender or reorder around Him right now? What makes that difficult? How can the group pray for you as you do that? Take time to pray together as a group.
