Joshua 10: God Is Master of Time Sermon Summary

In Joshua 10, five Amorite kings unite against Gibeon, but God intervenes on Israel's behalf, even causing the sun to stand still. The passage reveals that God alone is Master of Time: He grants time through His patience, ends time through His judgment, and bends time according to His redemptive purposes. While we often live as though time belongs to us, Scripture calls us to use our limited days for repentance, spiritual growth, and faithful obedience. Ultimately, the cross of Christ reveals God's power to redeem our past, transform our present, and secure our future.

Discussion Questions

- God grants time — His patience. (2 Peter 3:8–9)

God patiently gives us time to repent and grow. Where is God inviting you to change, grow in humility, or extend patience toward someone else? Are you making good use of the time He has given you?

- God ends time — His judgment. (Psalm 90:12)

Our days are numbered, and the small decisions we make are paving the path of our lives. If you lived with a greater awareness that your time is limited, what would you change about how you live, love, or prioritize your days?

- God bends time — His grace. (Joshua 10:12–14)

Joshua boldly asked God to do what seemed impossible. Where in your life do you feel you are running out of time, facing something beyond your power to change, or regretting what cannot be undone? How might you bring this to Christ, trusting in His power to redeem and renew?
