Dear friends and family, October 2026

Greetings again from the high deserts of Arizona. As the weather gets colder, and the leaves change in Holbrook, I am reminded not only of the blessing of central heating that we enjoy here in the modern day, but also of the variety of opportunities to glorify God that is afforded to us by the changing of our environment. This year in particular, however, has been rather unorthodox. Over a period of two days, we have seen three tornadoes touch down in our area, accompanied by very large hailstones. This has been all but unheard of not only in my lifetime, but also in the living memory of nearly everyone in the area. By the grace of God, there were no fatalities. However, a few buildings were damaged, and several trees were snapped in half. It is through these things that God reminds us of His goodness, and of our need for Him. Whether we are engaging with a broken and lost world, or just enjoying Christian fellowship around a campfire, we find that His truth permeates our lives, and allows us to draw closer in adversity.

As I teach through the book of Daniel, I am reminded, time after time, of God's faithfulness, and of the call of faithfulness that He places on our lives as Christians. It is through the testing of our faith that perseverance is developed. If we are faithful in the small things, even in what we consume and how we conduct ourselves, we will be strengthened to be faithful even in the face of a fiery furnace. I have been greatly encouraged by the questions and comments I have received from our students. I see among them a shared heart to be a light to the darkened culture around us, and to more deeply plumb the depths of God's Word. Please pray for us, as we seek to mentor and disciple these students. Pray that we will do justice to the profound truths that are in the Word of God, not missing a single point, and not relying on our own knowledge.

This month, we took a field trip to a local farm. It was such a joy to watch the kids pick out pumpkins, and admire the unique gourds that grew alongside them. I was grateful, as my wife (who is much better at crowd control than I am) directed the students through the corn maze, even making it back in time for pizza and a message from Philippians, shared by my close friend and pastor. His message was about the freedom from the past that God grants to us, and how, once God has declared us righteous by the blood of Christ, there is no condemnation for us. At this event, I was given the opportunity to hear and see how God has been working in the lives of our students, long before we met them. In the same way God chased down Nebuchadnezzar through the faithfulness of Daniel and his friends, so God will work in the lives of high schoolers, through the body of Christ, and the faithfulness therein, according to His sovereign grace and mercy!

Thank you again for the vital part you play in what God is doing through His ministry by your prayers and generous support! Through your faithfulness, God is at work in the lives of these kids, and we are honored to be a part of it!

Prayer Requests:

- Please pray for Levi and Abbey Susag as they seek to rightly teach the Word of God, and direct the ministry according to His will.
- Please pray for students coming to the Well, the Next Chapter, and the events, that God will use His word and the testimonies of our pastors and leaders this semester to grow them closer to Him.
- Please pray for additional godly volunteer leaders to join Oasis.
- Please pray that God will continue to widen the reach of this ministry.
