Dear North Ridge Family,

I want to thank everyone for your prayers, visits, cards and the food during my surgery, especially for your prayers. They mean so much. The one from the Ladies Class means so much to me. We love you. Give God the glory.

By Michael Orr

The beauty of roses,
Is trimmed to a stem,
As a seamstress weaves patterns,
But hides every hem.

Yet beneath every bloom,
In the garden it grows,
From the bush that supports it,
The heart of the rose.

In dirt and in soil,
The flowers are grown,
In a garden of purpose,
Where the seedlings are sewn,

Not with needle and thread,
But the pattern still shows,
For the beauty is shaped,
At the heart of the rose.

The thorns keep her safe,
When the danger draws near,
For the bush needs defense,
To survive every year.

Not a problem to manage,
Or a door we should close,
But a wisdom to keep,
At the heart of the rose.

In days long ago,
When the garden made room,
She was cared for and love,
On a green covered loom.

Where the beauty was stitched,
By the image He chose,
As the Gardener planted,
The heart of the rose.

Now in blossoms of Spring,
And of Summer she yields,
A glory surpassing,
Both forest and fields.

Though the world may forget it,
The Gardener knows,
True beauty is held,
At the heart of the rose.
